CARE OF BIG GAME

WINTER SCENES ON AN EAST-ERN PRESERVE.

More Timely Advice from Ernest Harold Baynes—Price of Success Lies in Management, He Declares.

The price of success in the management of a game preserve is continually and intelligently taught. I am particularly interested in the fact as I note from week to week the work which goes quietly along in the Blue Mountain forest, commonly known as Corbin Park, near Newport, N. H., the largest fenced game preserve in America. The work of the park which is done in the course of a year inside the 25 miles of fence which marks the boundary of the vast enclosure, would take much more space than is allotted to this article.

With the first heavy snow fall in November, the question of feeding these animals which were soon unable to find sufficient food for themselves. The deer, elk and wild boar were all right for the present; they were not dependent upon food which was buried beneath the snow, and more over they were fat and in unusually fine condition owing to the heavy crop of apples on which they had been feeding for many weeks. But the buffaloes depend largely on the grass which can get upon the ground, and because these animals are now too rare for any chances to be taken with the finest herd in the world. Down in the southeastern part of the reservation, in an enclosure known as Central station or No. 1, large yards have been made as winter quarters for the elk and deer, and once the animals are rounded up, it is a comparatively simple matter to feed them. But 24,000 acres is a large place, and buffaloes are not given to taking orders from anyone, so it is not the easiest thing in the world to persuade them to seek a particular part of the preserve and allow themselves to be shut up in such a place. However, it is well known that buffaloes once started along a trail which they have been over before are very apt to stick to that trail unless there is some good cause for their leaving it.

So when one day about the first of January, the men who were working in the yards, surrounded the main herd to bring them on a plain in the northeastern part of the park, they gently urged them towards the entrance to a trail, and into this the animals turned. Five miles away the trail reached a point to which a farm wagon had been driven, and when the men arrived they found a little hay waiting for them. They quickly ate it, and just beyond there was a little more, and a little more beyond that again. The hungry animals walked along, picking up the hay as they went, and naturally enough, after they had travelled thus for ten miles, they were tired. They lay down in the other side of the mountain, and about five miles from the buffalo yards. Here in some open fields they halted for the night and the men who had surrounded them went home. On returning early the next morning they found most of the buffaloes picking up a scaly vine which grows on the ground to be seen here and there, and about half a dozen of them were missing. They were overtaken five miles away.

In the meantime the main herd was urged and led quietly along to a large enclosure, where the animals were easily driven into the buffalo yards. Here they were taken in charge by William Morrison, expert in the breeding and handling of buffaloes, and he divided them into groups according to their age and sex. In the first yard were placed all the calves of the previous spring; in the second, a number of old bulls; in the third, young bulls and heifers, and so on through seven enclosures.

Each buffalo shed has a loft in which the hay is stored, and from which it can be tossed down into racks below. Each full-grown buffalo eats about three tons during the winter, each calf consumes about half a ton, and the appearance of hay increases about half a ton with each succeeding year until it reaches maturity. In this way the animals will be provided for until May, when the entire herd, including the young, will be young, calving, will have turned loose to wander, will over the great preserve, and to shift for themselves until the snow comes again, December again cut off their natural supply of food.

TO OUR FARMER FRIENDS

Clarksville, Tennessee, January 3rd, 1905.—This crop of tobacco, being of better quality and shorter in average yield, are two reasons for expecting better prices. Besides, full confidence as to the final outcome, may be based upon the wise conclusion of the farmer to prize and put his tobacco in condition to hold for the best demands, only to be found on the market.

The force of combines, who have ignored open markets, in their fixed price, the control is broken, and we predict an era of greater prosperity will come to tobacco growers. The farmer will not regret the move they have made, and the more compact their organization, the greater their influence.

As we have done for the many years past, we solicit the patronage of farmers. As heretofore, our best efforts in the behalf can safely be relied upon. Our warehouse is open day and night, and provided with great comfortable free quarters for teams and teamsters under the same roof.

Seventy Thousand Acres.

The State of Idaho will throw open for public entry, on March 25, seventy thousand acres of irrigable land under the Twin Falls Canals. This is the third opening of 140,000 acres having been previously opened and so generally taken up that it was designed to extend the area. The state will also place on sale twelve thousand acres of school lands on March 22 in the same tract. The Twin Falls border the great Shoshone or Snake river in the northern part of Caxisia county and is the largest on Western Continent under one irrigation system. The land is sold at 50 cents an acre by the state and the perpetual water rights cost a total of $25 an acre, the payments exceeding over ten years. The soil is a fine lava ash, very productive and the home market takes all that can be produced. All Idaho in on the Pacific slope and the climate is mild in winter and not oppressive in summer. The altitude is less than 4,000 feet. Inquiry about these lands may be made at the office of the State Land Board at Twin Falls, Idaho.

A new railroad is now being built by the Oregon Short line, into the heart of the tract. Twin Falls city was opened August 29 and now has about 1,000 people. It was estimated that it would take 15 years to develop the tract, but it will take less than three. Any person 21 years of age or over may take up not to exceed 170 acres. Most of the people come from other irrigated states, but a number of colonies have come from the East. As high as 78 bushels of wheat to the acre were raised last season, other crops, including fruits, in proportion.

Washington, D. C., March 8.—For Kentucky—Rain this afternoon and tonight. Partly cloudy and slightly cooler Thursday.

"LAST OF THE CONFEDERATES."

John H. Reagan, the last member of the Confederate Cabinet, died in Texas this week.

He went to Texas in 1839, and in his life, says the Chicago Record-Herald, and he served under three flags, had honored and been honored by the people in whose cause he was as valiant in war as he was in peace, and finally, in the fullness of years and achievement, passed to his eternal rest.

Born in Sevier county, Tennessee, October 8, 1818, and dying at his home at Palestine, Texas, March 6, the activities of John H. Reagan furnish an inspiration to all Americans. In the Republic of Texas he fought in many campaigns against the Indians. In the State of Texas he served the commonwealth as colonel of its militia, justice of the peace, sat in its legislature and upon the bench. Then he went to Congress and was counted one of the ablest members of the House, which he left in 1861 because he believed it his duty to cast his fortunes with the confederacy.

Under the stars and bars he was high political preferment. First Postmaster General of the Confederate States of America, he relinquished that post to become secretary of its treasury, devoting his energies and his fortune to a cause he loved and fondly hoped might prevail. But when the fortunes of war decreed that the southland should not depart the Union, and while a prisoner of war, this man undertook the work of calming sectional hatred, and finally returned to his people to advocate conciliation and unity.

Ripe in experience, he again became a legislator of the nation, serving as a senator from 1867 until 1891, fathering the "Reagan" interstate commerce law, which was afterward amended by Senator Culver, of Illinois, became the law which is now in force.

Pioneer, surveyor, lawyer, soldier, legislator, jurist, statesman, patriot, honest gentleman, John H. Reagan, true to himself and false to no man, leaves upon the scroll of fame a name which adds lustre to the glory of the country.

He is survived by a widow and several daughters.

Grand Duke Vladimir has again been notified that he may expect to be killed at any time.

BIBLICAL DRAMA

Possessing a Fascination Peculiarly Its Own.

Conspicuous for sagacious management and for the success of their companies presenting "The Royal Slave," "Gordon & Bennett have, with this season's production, exceeded in theatrical endeavor. In the great Biblical drama, "The Holy City" there is combined such a wealth of action, allegory, music and spectacle as has rarely if ever been seen. The possibilities for dramatic effect, with which the thrilling narrative of John the Baptist abounds, have been utilized with great skill and apparently unlimited cost. The acting company is noted for its integral brilliancy; the scenes present history in radiant splendor, the stage paraphernalia, all of which is carried by the company, being of impressive beauty. The integrity of the management first called public attention to the play, its matchless performances are carrying those endorsements which honesty of purpose and skillful design command. The presentation of "The Holy City" here next Tuesday night, March 14, will be eagerly anticipated.

CUT HIS THROAT.

Will Hays Uses His Knife
On Pete Laub.

An affray took place near the corner of Virginia and Sixth streets about 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, in which Pete Laub was cut twice by Will Hays. A long gash was made on the left side of Laub's neck and the rear of his left arm was also slashed, both being ugly wounds, from which blood flowed freely, until止ed up by Dr. Woodward, who was called to attend the injured man. Both parties were taken to police headquarters. Hays was held to circuit court by Judge Knight on a charge of cutting in unseasonable heat and passion and Laub on a charge of assault and battery. The latter was permitted to go on his own recognizance and Hays furnished bond in the sum of $100. As the grand jury is in session the master will probably be investigated at once.

CHAS. FINCH
GETS A LIFE
SENTENCE.

Jury Brings In a Verdict
Early Yesterday Morning.

CARNEY NOW ON TRIAL.

The Other Two Will Likely be Tried Also at This Term.

Charles Finch, number six in rotation, gets a life sentence this time for the part he played in the Pember murder. According to his own testimony, he was to remain in the road while the others murdered the stranger a little distance from the roadside. He claimed that he ran away when he found the sleeping man was being killed instead of robbed, but the jury evidently believed that Finch was posted in the road to watch and was guilty with the rest of the gang. The case went to the jury Saturday and the final agreement was reached in time to be handed in early yesterday morning. At his former trial Finch was given a death sentence and that he escaped this time with an unbroken neck is due largely to the eloquent speech made by attorney John Feland in his defense.

The Carney Case.

Dick Carney, one of the condemned men given a new trial by the Court of Appeals, was put on trial Monday. The usual course was followed and a special venire of 75 men was summoned, out of which the following jury was made up Tuesday morning:

J. W. Alexander, John Wynn, L. B. Hamby, J. V. Boyd, H. F. Boyd, Dennis Durham, Emmett Roper, J. C. Duke, W. R. Barnes, R. H. Baker, J. W. Gresham and J. E. Taylor.

Carney is defended by Robt. Lander, the colored attorney, while the prosecution is assisted by Judges James Breathing and Charles H. Bush. According to all reports, Carney was one of the ring-leaders and richly deserved the sentence given him before.

In addition to the confessions of several of the men, Chas. Finch and Ed. Moseley both testified Tuesday afternoon that they saw Carney sleep upon the sleeping man with four others of the gang and assist in the actual murder. One strong point in the circumstantial evidence was finding a $1 bill on Carney's person when he was arrested and this bill was of the stranger's bills, for which the murder was committed.

The defendant went on the stand and attempted to prove an alibi, but there was nothing beyond a general denial. He claimed that he stayed with a friend that night, but failed to introduce the friend. The defense was very weak.

The case was argued by Robert Lander and Judge Bush and submitted at the noon adjournment yesterday.

The court ordered a jury summoned for Friday morning to take up the case of Frank Merriweather, the last but one of the gang. Ed. Moseley, the ninth, is out on bond. The Mack Hern murder case was set for next Saturday.

SELFISHNESS
CLARKSVILLE'S
LONG SUIT.

friends seem to be laboring under some grave misapprehension, or serious error, if reports coming from that quarter are correct. It is said that the business men of our sister city are very much aggrieved and disappointed over the action of the Executive Committee of the Farmers' Tobacco Association in selecting the general salesmen from Clarksville, but more chagrined because of the designation of Clarksville as the point for the collection of type samples, for classification, etc."

Then follows a lengthy argument against the trust. We are all opposed to the Tobacco Trust, but it is unnecessary for us to form a Clarksville Trust in order to carry out the purpose of the organization.

Our neighbor continues:

"The success of the movement will bring from two to three million more money in the district than the last crop fetched. This money will be divided with the trade of the two places in proportion as the people choose their trading place, and Hopkinsville has not been hurt, but benefited by the organization, for she will receive both her full share of the patronage in business and also more tobacco for prizing and storage, than otherwise under the true rule."

We would call the attention of all interested to the fact that it was contention or rivalry between Louisville and Cincinnati that led indirectly to the defeat of the Burley Growers' Organization, and if the farmers of this section are wise they will lend no comfort to such a complaint from any quarter, but follow the action of their leaders, who have been faithful and true, and accomplished the most wonderful feat in organization known in history."

On the other hand it is important that the leaders at once amend their rules and lend proper "comfort" to every city in the district whose banks are helping to finance the movement, in order to avoid just what happened at Cincinnati. Clarksville may be strong in her own conceit, but we doubt if she be strong enough to urge a committee believed to have been organized with its weather eye on Clarksville to "lead no comfort" to those who do not like the agreement.

We give the Leaf-Chronicle's own explanation of why Clarksville was made "headquarters."

"Now in regard to the selection of Clarksville as the most suitable place for concentrating the type samples for classification. The committee was controlled by the same high motive of doing the best they could for the farmers, with no regard whatever for the material interests of the town. It was first contemplated to collect these types at Guthrie. That purpose was defeated for want of a suitable building. It was found that a splendid house for the purpose could be had in Clarksville on very reasonable terms. Then it was also demonstrated that the greater bulk of the tobacco would come here because of the facilities for prizing and storing. It was reasoned also that it was well to profit by the example of the enemy. The Regie people bought and prized tobacco all over the country and then shipped 12,000 hogheads here to get the Clarksville brand on it and cheaper shipping rates out, the Clarksville inspection being better known than the English and all foreign markets. However this may be, the committee had to concentrate these samples somewhere, they could not go to the woids for such business."

We can't see that Hopkinsville has anything to gain by antagonizing the Executive Committee in this matter. Our neighbors should have taken hold in the start, as the Clarksville people did and helped the farmers of Christian county organize. Now the thing for Hopkinsville to do is to go to work, like the Clarksville people are doing, help the farmers and get the tobacco you can handle for your prizing and storage houses. This is all that this town can get out of it, other than first helping the planter to get plenty of money for their tobacco. Dissension now helps the trust, and must hurt those who engage in such tactics."

This is, we admit, a plausible explanation and we agree with Mr. Lewis and Clark.

Mr. Senator Beach, of Baltimore, Md.; Mrs. Senator Warren, of Cheyenne, Wyo.; Balva Lockwood and Mrs. General Longstreet, of Washington, D. C., are among the prominent ladies who endorse Peruna.

Miss Helen Rolof, Kaukauna, Wis., writes:

"Several times during the past two years or more my system has been greatly in need of a tonic, and at those times Peruna has been of great help in building up the system, restoring my appetite and securing restful sleep."

Miss Muriel Armilidge, 36 Davenport St., Cleveland, Ohio, writes:

"I wish to add my indorsement to thousands of other women who have been cured through the use of Peruna. I suffered for five years with severe backache, and when I got married to the man of my profound headache. I am now in perfect health, enjoy life and have neither an ache or pain, thanks to Peruna." —Lucy M. Riley.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full account of your case and we will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

The Castle Heights team defeated

the South Kentucky College boys in the first game of basket ball played at Mooney's Hall Tuesday night. The score was 21 to 16. The second game was played yesterday afternoon, but had not been finished when our forms closed.

There seems to be no good reason why Clarksville should be the only anti-trust tobacco market for Kentucky tobacco and if this is insisted upon, the rule or ruin policy is quite likely to most seriously affect the prospects of a movement that has been brought to the verge of success by the efforts of a leader who does not happen to be a citizen of Montgomery county.

Clarksville must come down from her high perch, and let us all do business on the same footing.

NEXT FAIR.

The Big Exposition to be Held in Oregon.

The Lewis and Clark Exposition will be held at Portland, Oregon, from June 1 to October 1, 1905. It will commemorate the hundredth anniversary of the exploration of the Oregon country by an expedition of 30 soldiers commanded by Captain Merriweather Lewis and William Clark and planned by President Jefferson. The Oregon country comprised all of the present states of Oregon, Washington and Idaho and parts of Montana and Wyoming, an area of 300,000 square miles. This was the only territory acquired by the United States by discovery. The 13 original states were wrested from England by war. Louisiana, Texas and Alaska were purchased. Hawaii

Limbs Badly Swollen.

Dr. M. M. Fenner, Fredonia, N. Y.

Dear Sir—About 4 years ago I began to suffer with severe pains in my back making it impossible for me to do any work.

My wife and I were then in a bad way and I was troubled with an affection of the heart also, all coming as I suppose from kidney trouble.

I had tried several kidney remedies with little or no success.

I asked Mr. Dorrance, the druggist who handles your goods here and he recommended your Kidney and Backache Cure saying he had sold it for several years very successfully.

I took a bottle of the cure and the swelling all gone from my limbs and my heart trouble completely cured.

I have recommended this remedy to a large number of my acquaintances, with the same result.

I will gladly answer any letter from any one.

SPORTS AND ATHLETICS

Since the decline in the popularity of bicycle racing little has been heard of Eddie "Cannon" Bald, the champion of old. But if his hopes materialize his name will soon again appear among the racing merchants. It is time as a racing chauffeur, for he has been studying the game for the past year. Bald's driving record has been faithful and

Eddie Bald

and when he has arrived it will be with the equipment of a splendid ground work gained through hard study and continued application. It was immediately following the automobile show in New York last winter that Eddie Bald set out to his spring and pace-work in a factory in Hartford. He began his motorizing experience at the bottom-most rung of auto manufacturing—filling motor castings. Through the successive stages of machining and assembling Bald was sent, until in the spring, he came to the car test and found himself lost in some mountain fastness and slight overtake him. Through the early flights of gas engine fancy and fire economics Bald learned his practical automobile and testified to his possession of a complete knowledge. Before building a car of his own he was invited to compete in the fastest company race track, his employers decided to further test his abilities and daring without the outlay of the small fortune track racers cost.
One of the 30-35-horse power stock cars was stripped much of its weight and the frame hung lower to the ground. The engine was a 10-hp. and the water cooler was employed—the only radical departure. Over Charter Oak Park track, in Hartford, Bald broke the track record on his first attempt by going in 1:09. He has since got down to 1:05 over a mile ring counted by horsemen and drivers slow, since both turns were lowest up to the start. He has won the grand circuit races in September. The performances of Bald are considered remarkable for the track conditions and the fact that the car has practically road equipment, with water tank, gears and gear case, long-distance oil reservoir,
etc. as in the reliable modern motor. Bald's shooting record is encouraging as to warrant his participation in the most important events. Hiram Percy Maxim, chief engineer of the manufacturing company, is now at work on an eight-cylinder car which Bald is to drive, being designed with the idea of being entered in the Gordon Bennett cup contest abroad.

"Pittsburg Phil."

The death of George E. Smith, better known as "Pittsburg Phil," at a sanatorium at Asheville, N. C., the other day marks the passing of one of the most famous and most popular of the plungers of the day. He died of consumption, after an illness of several years.
"Pittsburg Phil" was born in Sewickley, Pa. He was a young boy when his parents died, and the family moved to Allegheny City. After a few years in the public schools of that city, Smith started out to live on his own. He began as a brakeman in a railroad yard, but lasted only one day, for he wrecked a car and left in a hurry.
Then he secured a place as a cork cutter at a salary of $10 a week. It was during this time he first heard of the name of Pittsburg Phil. At that time such things as complete tables of race results were unknown, and the young man quickly realized that such data were invaluable to a successful bettor. He began by jotting down the performances as they were called off by the telegraph operator,
and in a short time was conversant with the probable running of horses and began to bet. To get all the action he wanted Smith went to Chicago.
It was there that he gained the sobriquet of "Pittsburg Phil." His own explanation of how he won the sobriquet is interesting.
When bettors placed their bets on a horse he would call the boy "Phil." As there was another "Phil" patronizing
the room, the players called Smith
"Pittsburg Phil" as a means of identification, and this designation clung to him through his turf career. In 1878 Smith went east and continued to plunge. A year later he was in the turf. It was not long before he returned, and in 1880 he was again an owner of horses. Twice in 1891
King Cadmus won, the first time at odds of nine to one, when his owner backed him to win $75,000. On the other occasion he was credited with a winning of $35,000, and on Parvens he was betting $100,000. The winning tickets amounted to $20,000 on a single race.
In 1903 his entries were barred on suspicion and he sold his stable. "Pittsburg Phil" was one of the few plungers to die rich. His fortune was estimated at various sums up to $1,000,000.

He started to win
from the time he entered the game of horse speculation, and, with rare intervals, continued to win almost up to the time of his death.

GREAT BARGAIN PERIOD.

Big Clearance Sale at Church Hill Begins Saturday.

Realizing that he will need much room for spring goods, which will shortly arrive, Mr. J. M. Adams, the well-known Church Hill merchant, will inaugurate a grand clearance sale. This sale will commence next Saturday, March 11, and continue about two weeks. Hundreds of large posters are being circulated, announcing the sale and giving a partial list of the many articles of merchandise to be offered. Mr. Adams announces that he will offer many bargains to his customers and the public generally.

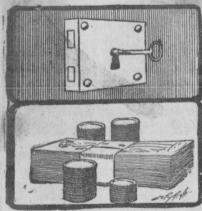

His son, Mr. Eli Adams, who has charge of the business, has just returned from the markets, where he purchased largely for the approaching season. These goods will be arriving in a few days and their big sale to be put on this week to make room, will doubtless be a great success.

In Memory

OF DARNEY W. STEWART, WHO DIED PARTED THIS LIFE MARCH 4TH, 1905.

The subject of this piece was born in the State of Georgia on the 9th day of February, 1846. He came to this country with his parents when only two years old, where he lived until his death. He was married to Miss Helen Harlow in 1870, who with seven sons and two daughters is left to cherish the memory of a well spent life.

He was a loving and affectionate husband, kind and gentle father; honest and upright in all his dealings, and a useful man in the vicinity in which he lived. He was always ready to minister to the wants of the poor and to sympathize with the unfortunate.

He had been in bad health for some time and his death was due to a complication of diseases. His remains were taken to the Lander burying ground near Gracey for burial.

To the bereaved wife and children and friends we would say, weep not for him, for he has gone before to make Heaven brighter and more attractive for you.

The building is a large brick family mansion containing ten or fifteen rooms, with frontage on three streets.

A suit for the adjustment of the estate is pending in the United States district court. It is one of the most complicated suits ever filed in an Owensboro court, covering in its details the life time of three generations.—Messenger.
